Duration: 3

Fitness: ▲▲▲▲▲ Technique: ▲▲▲▲▲

Price from: 895 €

The Monte Rosa Massif, straddling the Italian Valle d'Aosta and the Swiss Valais, is a must-see destination for altitude enthusiasts. A combination of a dozen peaks over 4000m and majestic glaciers made easy to access by a set of high-perched refuges. In the heart of the Monte Rosa Massif, the proposed program will allow you to enjoy a typical high altitude glacial atmosphere and breathtaking views of the Alps. In three days, you will climb numerous 4000's, including Pointe Zumstein and Vincent Pyramid. Due to the altitude, this program requires knowledge of basic mountaineering techniques.

This trip is part of a series of programs that we have created for you to climb the 4000-meter peaks of the Alps. Enjoy a tailored progression to achieve the ascent of your first 4000. Set out to climb the renowned Grand Paradis or embark on an essential traverse to Weissmies in the Swiss Valais.

ITINERARY

Day 1

Walk up to the Gnifetti hut (3,625m)

Morning transfer to Gressoney-Staffal in the Aosta Valley, at the foot of the Monte Rosa Massif. We take the Staffal ski lifts up to the Indren glacier (3,275m). A short traverse of the glacier quickly leads us to the Mantova hut (3,418m), then to the Gnifetti hut (3,625m). We enjoy a quiet afternoon at the hut to acclimatize to the altitude and review basic roping techniques.

Vertical ascent : 370m

Day 2

Ascent of Pointe Zumstein (4,563m)

We gently climb the Glacier du Lys until we reach the Col du Lys (4,152m), which marks our entry onto the Zermatt side of the Monte Rosa Massif. We pass nearby Capanna Margherita (highest refuge in Europe: 4,554m!) to reach the Col Gnifetti (4,455m), from where we take the southeastern ridge of Pointe Zumstein to the summit (4,563m). We descend by the same route, taking a break at Capanna Margherita. Depending on conditions, it is possible to add the ascent of Ludwigshöhe (4,343m). Second night at the Gnifetti hut.

Elevation gain : 938m - Elevation drop : 938m

Day 3

Ascent of Vincent Pyramid (4,215m)

We gently climb the Glacier du Lys again, but we turn right halfway to Vincent Pyramid and its summit (4,215m). We enjoy a beautiful view over the east side of the Monte Rosa Massif and the wild Valsesia. We walk down to the refuge and then to the ski lifts near Pointe Indren (3,258m), which bring us peacefully back to Staffal. Return to Chamonix in the middle of the afternoon.

Elevation gain : 590m - Elevation drop : 940m
